IDEAL PROGRAM COURSE SYLLABUS ONLINE

Dear Student,

Please read the following course syllabus carefully, especially the course expectations and activities. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to communicate with the IDEAL office, your academic advisor, or the instructor.

The IDEAL degree-completion program is designed with the adult learner in mind. Adult learners approach learning with specific goals, want to be able to directly apply new learning to their work and personal lives, and tend to learn best when the coursework is problem-centered so that they are actively engaged in the learning process. In addition, adults bring rich and varied experience to the classroom, which becomes a valuable learning resource for other students.

The IDEAL Program assumes joint responsibility in the learning process. The activities and assignments in our courses build on the shared experience of all learners in each class. This is why each student's preparation, participation and interaction in class activities and discussions are critical to the success of each course. The accelerated format of each course requires a significant amount of time outside the classroom to prepare for and complete the course assignments. This varies between students and courses; however, students typically spend a minimum of ten-twelve hours per week on course material.

To participate in the IDEAL Program, it is expected that you will do the following:

- 1. Participate in and complete the online orientation prior to your first online course.
- 2. Obtain the required course materials prior to the course start date.
- 3. If you do not participate during the first week of the course, you will be dropped one letter grade. If a student doesn't participate for two or more weeks a grade of "F" will be entered for a final grade.
- 4. Login to your course a minimum of three times per week.
- 5. Complete all assignments to the best of your ability.
- 6. Participate in the class discussions and demonstrate respect and consideration to the instructor and other students when they express themselves in discussion.
- 7. If you have any technical difficulties, you must contact the Office of Distance Education immediately at ubonline@bridgeport.edu.

It is the student's responsibility to familiarize himself or herself with and adhere to the standards set forth in the policies on cheating and plagiarism as defined in Chapters 2 and 5 of the Key to UB http://www.bridgeport.edu/pages/2623.asp or the appropriate graduate program handbook.

E-mail correspondence

It is imperative that you check your UB e-mail on a regular basis. All written correspondence, to include IDEAL and the University will be sent to you through his e-mail. The University can no longer correspond to your personal e-mail account(s).

Instructor

Jason Jakubowski, MPA jjakubow@bridgeport.edu

This is my ninth year teaching online in the state of Connecticut. I hold both a Bachelor's Degree in Political Science and a Master's Degree in Public Affairs from the University of Connecticut, and I currently work as the Vice President of Government Relations at Hospital for Special Care. Prior to teaching I served six years in elected office in my hometown.

To me, political science is about more than just Democrats and Republicans. Political science is about understanding people and understanding how we, as a civilized democracy, choose to govern ourselves. A lot of people have a negative impression of politics and government – and that may never change. But whether you love it or hate it, politics and government affect everyone. Every time you drive on the street or mail a letter or send your child off to school, your life is affected by the decisions our elected and appointed leaders make. By understanding politics and government, you will be able to find ways to improve the lives of your family, your friends and your community.

I am very much looking forward to this class - and it is my hope that when it's over, you will have a greater understanding of (and appreciation for) our legal system. If I can be of any help throughout this semester, please do not hesitate to e-mail me at the address above.

General Expectations

This is an on-line course - and as someone who works for a distance learning college, I am aware that some people see on-line learning as a "piece of cake" or as an "easy pass." I can assure you that this course will be neither. I expect that every student will pass this course; however, I also expect that every student will work hard to pass this course.

If this was an on-site course, students would be in a classroom for three hours each week, plus they would spend time reading, studying and completing assignments outside of class. So, at an absolute bare minimum, students should expect to spend at least five or six hours on this course each week. Some weeks will be more, and some will be less; but generally speaking, five or six hours should be the minimal amount of time you spend on this class.

A quick word about deadlines and technology: Since you signed-up for this on-line course, it is assumed that you have a reasonable level of accessibility to the Internet. That said, all of the deadlines given in this course should be considered very strict. Claiming that you lost Internet access or that your computer just wasn't working right will not be acceptable excuses. This is one area that I cannot be flexible in. By signing up for this on-line course, it is your responsibility to gain access to the Internet. Enough public domains do exist (i.e. libraries, UB computer labs, etc.) for you to be able to complete your assignments under any technological circumstances.

Evaluation and Grading

Grading for this course will be as follows: Weekly Discussions 50% Weekly Quizzes 50%

Letter Grading Scale:

83-80	B-
79-77	C+

% of Points Earned	Letter Grade

73-70	C-
69-67	D+

Weekly Discussions

Each week in this course will run from 12:00 a.m. on Monday through 11:59 p.m. on Sunday. All students are expected to read the required chapters in the textbook early in the week and then spend the rest of the week asking questions and participating in the on-line discussion.

Every Monday, I will post a question to prompt discussion. Thereafter, I am expecting students to maintain the bulk of the discussion (with my interjections when appropriate). Your weekly discussion grades will be based on the following elements:

- Quality = 40%
  - A one sentence question that actually provokes a quality discussion impresses me more than a two paragraph bland answer to a relatively easy question. In fact, the best entries will be those that thoughtfully answer one student's question while raising others in the process.
- Accuracy = 20%
  - Your entries should be both factually and grammatically accurate. Taking the initiative to answer a question will improve your grade, but answering a question with the wrong facts will not. By the same token, all messages should be grammatically correct (including spelling). And please: no "text-messaging" or "instant-messaging" acronyms.
- Initiative = 20%
  - Favorable consideration will be given to students who clearly take initiative in their discussion. For example: I will look favorably upon any student who answers another student's question before I have the opportunity to answer it. I will also look favorably upon students who post articles or web-links to emphasize their points.
- Amount = 10%
  - Simply put: the more the better. I don't expect everyone to post 100 messages a week, but I do expect at least 3 or 4 postings. If you just post one response each week, I consider that "average" and you will probably only get a C for the week. Also: I can see the number of posts that each student has read... and I do expect everyone to read everyone else's postings each week.
- Timing = 10%
  - Writing five messages on Monday and then never writing again for the rest of the week isn't going to cut it. Neither is writing five messages Sunday night in order to catch-up at the last minute. I'm looking for a free-flowing continuous discussion, not one that peaks at the beginning and end of each week. As a rule, everyone should post at least once by Thursday each week.

All e-mails, posts and chats in this course must conform to standard netiquette. Students should debate all issues in a constructive, respectful manner. No derogatory language or remarks will be allowed. Any violation of this policy will affect your grade.

Every Monday, I will review the discussion for the previous week and assign each student a numeric grade (from 0% - 100%) based on the criteria mentioned above. Your overall On-Line Discussion grade will be the average of the weekly grades.

Weekly Quizzes

Each week I will post an online quiz that corresponds to that week's assigned reading. Each quiz will consist of 25 multiple choice questions. All questions were randomly selected from the publisher's test bank.

I have set-up the quiz modules so that you will instantly receive your grade. Once you submit your quiz you will receive a summary of all of your answers, all of the correct answers and your score on the quiz.

Of course, these are all open-book quizzes. You may use your textbook for any and all questions; but be careful: because this is a timed test, you will not have enough time to research the answer to every single question. Please budget your time wisely.

Course Schedule

This course is set-up to run from Monday through Sunday. For the purposes of completing assessments and grading discussions, each week begins at midnight on Monday and ends at 11:59 p.m. on the following Sunday.

ACADEMIC POLICIES

Ethics Statement of Confidentiality

An integral component of an IDEAL course is student and faculty expression of personal experiences for the purpose of facilitating coursework. Students enrolled in the program are expected to honor confidentiality as it pertains to student disclosure. Shared information, comments, or opinions expressed by another student or the faculty member during the course of classroom discussion should never be used in a manner which is intended to humiliate, embarrass, harass, damage, or otherwise injure other students in their personal, public, or business lives. In addition, confidentiality must be upheld by not disclosing any information that would identify any particular individual.

Attendance Policy

Course attendance, especially in an online course, is an integral part of the academic experience; therefore, students are expected to be participative in all course activities and discussions. If you do not participate during the first week of the course, you will reduce the final grade by one letter grade. If you cannot participate in all the course activities you should consider dropping the course.

Drop Procedures

To drop a course, you must complete and submit a Schedule Change Request Form. The form can be accessed at the following web page:

http://www.bridgeport.edu/pages/2595.asp

Starting Fall 2012

- Drop a course after the start date.....$30.00 per transaction
- Drop prior to the start date......100% Tuition Refund
- Drop prior to the second week of the course......75% Tuition Refund
- Drop prior to the third week of the course......50% Tuition Refund
- Drop during/after the third week of the course......0% Tuition Refund

**Please note students will not be automatically dropped for not participating during the first week. Lack of participation for one week will reduce the final grade by one letter grade. If you have to miss the first week of the online course, you must contact your instructor in writing before the first week. However, a grade reduction will apply.

Please print and complete the form and fax the form to the IDEAL Office: 203-576-4537. Prior to dropping a course, the student should contact their IDEAL Academic Advisor to understand the implications to financial aid and/or degree plan progress.

Please review the Academic Calendar to see the fees for a drop and the impact on tuition. The Academic Calendar can be found at: http://www.bridgeport.edu/pages/2595.asp

Academic Dishonesty

We are committed to intellectual integrity in our academic pursuits; therefore, the IDEAL program prohibits all forms of academic dishonesty. Academic dishonesty is normally defined as, but not limited to, the following two categories:

Cheating – Using inappropriate sources of information in an assignment or on a test. The following are examples of cheating taken from real student experiences:

Case #1: A student is enrolled in an introductory computer-programming course. He has coworkers who program in the same language as his final project. As the end of the term approaches, he wonders how he will find the time to get the project finished, and asks one of his co-workers for help. His co-worker hands him a disk with a complete program similar to the kind required for the course project. The student makes minor modifications to the program, and submits it under his own name.

Case #2: A student enrolled in a religious studies course has never taken a humanities or history course, and is unsure about how to structure a research paper. She is doing research on the World Wide Web, and comes across a paper written by a student from another university. Using her computer mouse, she copies and pastes the document into her word processor. She goes to great lengths to re-word the paper in her own style, but essentially leaves the content and organization the same.

Plagiarism – Intentional as well as unintentional failure to acknowledge sources as well as the use of commercially available so-called "research papers" without full recognition of the source. Presenting as one's own, the ideas, words, or products of another. The following are examples of plagiarism taken from real student experiences:

Case #3: A student is conducting research for a Civil War research paper. He has reviewed work on the Internet as well as in the library. Finding helpful information, he has summarized his findings without citing his sources. He believes that minor paraphrasing is all that is necessary.

Case #4: A student is writing a paper that requires her to address specific topics and problems in the assigned course textbook. She takes the information directly from the textbook with slight modification, without giving any citation. She thinks that since it is the course textbook, she doesn't have to use quotations or citations.

Academic dishonesty applies to all courses, assignments or exams completed by students and submitted as their own original work, whether in person or by electronic means. The University does not tolerate cheating in any form. It is a serious breach of conduct with serious consequences. Instructors have the right to determine the appropriate penalty for academic dishonesty in their own classes; generally, however, such acts will result in a failing grade for the assignment and/or the course. The penalty for subsequent acts of academic dishonesty may include expulsion.

More information on how to recognize plagiarism can be found at this site: http://www.indiana.edu/~istd/plagiarism_test.html
