Master of Science in Finance

Don't just count money — master it

Not everyone has an eye for numbers. So, if facts and figures are your forté, why not invest in your future? In our ever-shifting global economy, the need for financial experts only increases. When you achieve a master's in Finance, you can set yourself apart as a sought-after specialist in an in-demand field. At University of Bridgeport, our MS in Finance program factors your professional goals into every equation — providing the comprehensive curriculum, expert instruction, and support necessary to succeed in graduate school and beyond.

Begin your next chapter at UB

At UB, our MS in Finance program is designed to lift your career to new heights. As a student at our esteemed Ernest C. Trefz School of Business, you'll learn from faculty experts with decades of experience — developing advanced analytic and technical skills to establish yourself as a leader in your field. Our in-depth MS in Finance curriculum hones in on issues related to finance, economics, and money markets — introducing you to modern concepts such as financial regulation and behavioral finance. With small class sizes and the opportunity to choose between a thesis or internship track, you'll receive the personalized support you deserve from your graduate school — carrying you from classroom to career.

Gain exciting hands-on opportunities

At University of Bridgeport, one-of-a-kind possibilities are around every corner. With our main campus located between two major hubs of industry — New York City and Boston — you will have access to diverse and dynamic internship opportunities. These experiences will help position you as a dedicated and adaptable finance professional — paving the way for success as you enter the field.
