Bachelor of Science in Human Services

Work toward a career helping others with a bachelor's degree in Human Services

A degree in Human Services opens rewarding career opportunities where you can make a positive impact on the lives of others. Human services professionals implement strategies that assist our most vulnerable populations. Graduates of UB's Bachelor of Science in Human Services go on to have meaningful careers in education, social services, community organizations, clinical settings, group homes, and in-home care settings. The Human Services program at UB prepares you for exciting opportunities to make a real difference in the world.

Improve the lives of others

Human services professionals help people facing some of life's biggest challenges. In this program, we prepare you with the knowledge and tools to promote positive change in individuals, families, and communities. You'll work with single parents, recovering addicts, victims of abuse, people experiencing homelessness, and more. Your support and direction will provide hope and resources for people as they rebuild their lives.

Gain real world experience

At University of Bridgeport, our Human Services faculty have decades of experience in diverse professional settings. Their expert instruction, combined with a collaborative and dynamic learning environment, will help you hone the knowledge and skills necessary to meet the challenges of this in-demand career path. In addition to traditional coursework, you'll gain hands-on experience with an internship in the field — bridging your success from classroom to career.
